Collection Title: Etel Adnan Collection, 1973-2023

Collection Dates: 1980-2023

Physical Description: 22 boxes (9.3 linear feet)

Abstract: Born in Beirut on 24 January 1925, to a Greek Christian mother from Smyrna and an Arab Muslim father from Damascus who served as an officer in the Ottoman Empire, Etel's life begins in the tumultuous aftermath of World War I and spans almost a century. In 1949 she left Beirut to Paris to study philosophy, then embarked on postgraduate study in the United States, where she gained renown as an Arab American author before she returned to Lebanon, to leave again at the outbreak of the Lebanese Civil War. She received international acclaim as an artist over the past decade for work ranging widely across painting, drawing, book art, and tapestry. However, she was also a visionary master of words, experimenting in an array of fields – as a journalist, novelist, playwright, essayist, activist, and poet. Deeply grounded in humanistic inquiry, her work breaks free of literary and artistic confines and embraces the universe in intimate and critical yet joyful ways. Etel Adnan passed away in Paris on 14 November 2021.

Scope and Content

The Etel Adnan collection consists of her personal diaries, correspondence, and manuscripts of her works at various stages of her life.

The diaries, spanning the years 1967 to 2007, provide intimate insights into her everyday life, thought processes, literary and artistic work. They refer to a range of historical events, from the 1967 War to the Lebanese Civil War of 1975-1990 to the Iraq War of 2003.

The extensive correspondence covers the years 1982 to 2018. Etel Adnan was an ardent writer of letters. She sent missives daily in multiple directions across the world, staying in touch with friends, exchanging ideas, expressing empathy, discussing art and politics, reflecting on her own writing, exile, womanhood, and homecoming. Among others she corresponded with Ammiel Alcalay, Margot Badran, Kamal Boullata, Russell Chatham, Steve Dickison, Robert Del Tredici (Bobby), Dominique Eddé, Simone Fattal, Morgan Gibson, Ann O’Hanlon, Lillian Kiesler, Georgina Kleege, Rashid Korayshi, Alia Mamdouh, Hassan Massoudy, Fawwaz Traboulsi, Hans-Ulrich Müller-Schwefe, Janine Rubeiz, Salah Stétié, Ghassan Tueni, and Robert Wilson.

The manuscripts offer glimpses into the artist at work; crossed-out words, revisions, word choice. They include “Benjamin’s Briefcase,” a film synopsis accompanied by notes she wrote together with Michael M. Shamberg. The film was never realized, but its manuscript has given inspiration to Doyle Avant’s “Etel’s Suitcase,” which premiered at the Etel Adnan Symposium at AUB on 23–24 February 2023.

Biographical Information

Etel Adnan was born in Beirut on 24 January 1925 to a Greek Christian mother from Smyrna and an Arab Muslim father from Damascus who had served as an officer in the Ottoman Empire.

Having grown up in Lebanon under the French Mandate and attended French schools, she studied French literature at the newly founded École Supérieure des Lettres de Beyrouth. In 1949, she was awarded a fellowship to study philosophy at the Sorbonne. In 1955, she left France to pursue graduate studies in the United States, at Harvard and Berkeley, but then started teaching philosophy of art at Dominican College in San Rafael, California. The cultural revolution of the 1960s, women’s liberation, decolonial struggles, and the anti–Vietnam War movement set the context in which she found the freedom to develop her literary and artistic interests. Expressing herself in French, the language of the French colonial power, became a problem, especially with the Algerian War of Independence. Adnan started to write in English, contributing some of her first poems in English to Walter Lowenfels’ famous anthology Where is Vietnam? American Poets Respond (1967). At around the same time, she started painting. Apart from some early guidance by artist friends, notably by Ann O’Hanlon, who was teaching art at Dominican College, Adnan is a self-taught artist.

In 1972, Adnan returned to Beirut to work as a journalist for the cultural pages of the French language dailies al-Safa' and L'Orient le Jour. It was here that she met Simone Fattal who like her had studied literature and philosophy before turning to visual art and who was to become her partner. Fattal later founded The Post Apollo Press which published most of Adnan's literary work.

Due to the Lebanese Civil War (1975-1990), Adnan left Beirut again, now dividing her time between California, Paris, and (later again) Beirut. Her 1977 novel Sitt Marie-Rose won the France-Pays Arabes award and was translated into several languages, among them Arabic, English, French, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish, Turkish, and Urdu. Adnan has written more than 30 books of poetry and prose, among them, in English or English translation: Moonshots, From A to Z, The Indian Never Had a Horse & Other Poems, Journey to Mount Tamalpais, The Arab Apocalypse, The Spring Flowers Own & The Manifestation of the Voyage, Of Cities & Women: Letters to Fawaz, Paris, When It's Naked, In the Heart of the Heart of Another Country, Master of the Eclipse, Sea and Fog, Life is a Weaving, Night, and Shifting the Silence. She also wrote for the theater, and contributed to the French part of Civil Wars, a multilanguage opera by Robert Wilson. Her writing has been put to music by various artists and inspired a range of films.

Etel Adnan's artwork consists of small-scale paintings, drawings, and book art, and her leporellos which have become her signature. In addition, she also experimented with ceramics and handwoven tapestry. Her artwork can be found in many collections and has been shown in art festivals, museums, and galleries the world over, among them the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York; Galerie Lelong & Co, Paris; MUDAM, Luxembourg; Zentrum Paul Klee, Bern; Institut du Monde Arabe, Paris; Serpentine Gallery, London; Sfeir-Semler Gallery, Beirut; Mathaf, Doha; Whitney Museum, New York, DOCUMENTA (13), Kassel.

Etel Adnan received numerous awards, among them the France-Pays Arabes award, the Arab American Book Award, The California Book Award for Poetry, the Lambda literary Award, the AUB Medal, and the Lifetime Achievement award by the Radius of Arab American Writers Inc. (RAWI). In 2014, she was named Chevalier des Arts et des Lettres by the French Government.

Etel Adnan passed away in Paris on 14 November 2021.
